Craig:

I hope that Pallman farms got a "green light" from the PA Department of Agriculture on the November 9 blood testing samples.

If you need me for an additional blood testing session between now and the end of the year, I'll be happy to drive over.

Being at Pallman Farms is always an enjoyable experience for me, not only because the Pallman family are a wonderful and very likeable family group, but also because being at your farm, at this time of year, opens the door for me to a tidal wave of very pleasant memories of my growing-up years on a family dairy/poultry farm where we raised, butchered, and sold several hundred turkeys for the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays.

Best,

Robert

Craig:

Over the years, I have always donated my services to Pallman Farms in order for Pallman Farms to comply with the bloodtesting requirements established by the PA Department of Agriculture in order for Pallman Farms to market turkeys in Pennsylvania, and, in return, Brian or Bruce has always added my name to the "Complementary List" for a Thanksgiving Turkey.

Will that arrangement be possible again this year? If so, I will drive over to the Pallman Farm on Monday or Tuesday of Thanksgiving week and pick up a turkey.

Thanks.

Robert
